Announcement of the 17th CEUS Workshop on May 15 and 16, 2023

Dear Sir or Madam,

We are pleased to announce that the Center for EUropean Studies (CEUS) is hosting the 17th CEUS Workshop on European Economic Integration. Founded in 2004, CEUS is an academic center that offers both research and educational programs on European economic integration. Each year, researchers present their research findings or simply participate in the workshop, promoting understanding of current European economic developments among participants from universities, financial institutions, and politics. We will do our best to once again create a fertile environment to eager economists to share their work with an international audience and enrich the discussions with their in-depth knowledge. In addition, we will take all possible protective measures to minimize the risk of infection with COVID-19 for the respective participants. Therefore, we will adhere to the highest hygiene standards possible.

Experience has shown that our workshop provides an opportunity to develop new ideas for future research and to receive honest feedback from participants working in similar areas. As in previous years when the CEUS workshop was held, we will again provide a pleasant and open-minded atmosphere that will offer the opportunity to make new contacts and benefit from academic diversity. We would like to invite you to the 17th CEUS Workshop, which will take place on May 15 and 16, 2023, at WHU - Otto Beisheim School of Management in Vallendar.

For more information, please see the attached information sheet and feel free to post it on your faculty bulletin board or forward it to interested colleagues. Please keep in mind that it is also possible to simply attend the workshop without presenting a paper.

We look forward to hearing from you soon.
